if you talked about year 16, I assume it is our fiscal year April 1st 2015 to March 31st. 2016. So you need actual expenses, please confirm.

Thanks

DJ

Please do not process transitory records such as emails."

RCMP Liaison Officer Program

Mandate

The RCMP Liaison Officer mandate at post is to provide support and assistance to Canadian and foreign law enforcement agencies, in the prevention and detection of criminal offences which may impact on Canada or Canadians, by liaising with foreign criminal law enforcement agencies and related institutions.

The Liaison Officers seek out, foster and enhance international law enforcement relationships and partnerships with foreign law enforcement agencies, and related institutions, with the intent of using a multi-disciplined, integrated, long term approach that leverages criminal intelligence, investigation and enforcement for mutual benefits.

Being posted around the world not only allows LOs to facilitate global international cooperation on an operational level, but also provides them with a unique opportunity to share best practices and communicate the RCMP's mission, vision and values.

They also collaborate with INTERPOL Ottawa, which is often the first point of contact for foreign requests for police assistance, such as subscriber checks, locating travelers, criminal record checks and fingerprint verification.

Currently, the RCMP counts 30 LO Posts, LOs and Criminal Analysts posted in the various strategic locations. Some of the LOs and Analysts have a dual role, which is to also focus on human smuggling issues that could affect Canada directly.

Since January 2014, the RCMP deployed criminal intelligence analysts on assignment in regions where the RCMP has determined operational needs and a need for increased awareness of events and criminal activities. The deployment of several new resources had for objective to enhance the foreign liaison program, increasing the visibility and influence of the RCMP.

Both liaison officers (LOs) and intelligence analysts have been placed in key countries that are of immediate operational importance as well as of strategic interest to RCMP operations. Creating an intelligence analytical capacity in foreign posts enables the RCMP to exploit the wealth of information received by LOs, which could increase the proactive identification of criminal threats to Canada,

- Facilitate the visits of and investigations by officers or employees of the RCMP or other Canadian law enforcement personnel to your area of responsibility;
- Identify and communicate through headquarter developments in law enforcement policy and practice, training and equipment in relation to all forms of criminal activity where such are of interest to policing in Canada;
- With the agreement of law enforcement authorities in the area of responsibility co-operate with accredited representatives of foreign law enforcement authorities;
- Inform and ensure the concurrence of the local authorities of jurisdiction when assisting or pursuing criminal matters, on behalf of other foreign law enforcement liaison officers, a third party, for the purpose of relaying that information to this third country;
- Provide support as required to other RCMP Liaison Officers in their area of responsibility.

Administrative & Accountability

The RCMP is responsible for the funding of LO posts. The LOs are required to account for expenditures of these funds in accordance with the Financial Administration Act and RCMP policy on financial management. All RCMP related administrative matters must be directed to the program manager at post in the first instance, including the O&M claims.

Liaison Officers enjoy a high level of autonomy and with this comes an even higher level of accountability. As an employee of the RCMP, the LO remain accountable to the Officer in charge of International Operations & Policing Development, reporting through the Regional Desk Coordinator on operational and administrative matters. As a member of the staff of the Embassy/High Commission, the LO will have responsibility to the Head of Mission on mission administrative matters and will keep the incumbent generally informed of his/her activities. The accountability relationship is governed by the MOU between DFATD and the RCMP.

General Staff Supervision

The LO will provide supervision to the other LOs and Locally Engaged Staff (LES), including but not limited to:

- Projecting workloads
- Establishing post activities
